Catherine Crowell Pavur uses her discernment in advising her clients on when to resolve their case out of court and when circumstances dictate going to court. She has a significant amount of actual in-court experience, with the great majority of her practice in the District and Superior courts. She has experience in collection matters -- including before a jury -- as well as civil and business litigation. She has handled small business disputes, surety cases, landlord-tenant disputes and domestic cases.

Ms. Pavur is admitted in all three of the U.S. District Courts in North Carolina and has experience with appeals in the state appellate courts.
