

ALTERNATE DISPUTE RESOLUTION

Moore & Van Allen offers a team of seasoned and experienced attorneys who devote a significant part of their practice to serving as neutrals in arbitrations, mediations and other forms of alternate dispute resolution. Their years of experience as both neutrals and advocates in a broad range of commercial, construction and tort litigation matters, including complex federal cases, enables them to add significant value when parties turn to alternative dispute resolution.

The firm's ADR team includes members who are certified by the NC Dispute Resolution Commission as mediators in the state's trial courts or who are on approved panels of arbitrators and mediators through organizations such as the American Arbitration Association (AAA).

In addition, the firm has a fully wired facility for use as a courtroom for arbitrations, mediations, mock trials, and focus groups, with a capability for listening to and observing mock juries and focus groups.
