Kaitlin Price brings her experience as a law clerk in the North Carolina Business Court to represent businesses and individuals in complex commercial matters in the North Carolina Business Court. In addition, she also represents individuals and corporations facing white-collar criminal prosecution as well as government and corporate investigations.

Kaitlin has experience in complex litigation matters involving a wide variety of business disputes, commercial contracts, antitrust litigation, and interpleader actions. In addition, she is well versed in the North Carolina Unfair and Deceptive Trade Practices Act and North Carolina limited-liability company and partnership disputes.

Kaitlin regularly practices in state and federal court. She has drafted briefs for motions to dismiss, dispositive motions and discovery disputes in North Carolina Business Court and has successfully argued motions to dismiss claims in state court. Additionally, Kaitlin has experience conducting fact witness interviews and defending and taking third-party depositions.

Kaitlin's practice also focuses on conducting internal investigations for financial institutions and private companies pertaining to a wide range of issues. She has worked with a client to develop an evaluation of the internal allegation reporting process and managed over seventy resources as a part of conducting that internal investigation. She has also assisted in representing a North Carolina based conglomerate of businesses in response to DOJ investigations into federal bribery and financial crimes, including working with third-party forensic consultants.

In addition to her civil litigation and investigations practices, Kaitlin has assisted pro-bono clients in custody, support and divorce proceedings.
