MVA Senior Counsel Sarah Byrne's article titled, "Financial institutions are poised to take next step in combatting human trafficking" was published by Thomson Reuters Institute on January 11, National Human Trafficking Awareness Day.

The article

Despite the pandemic and economic crises of the last year, financial institutions continue to recognize their unique role in responding to human trafficking. However, the challenge remains with how to tactically build that response in a survivor-centered way, especially in the wake of a global pandemic.
