

NEWS

Gaskins Quoted in Human Resource Executive Article

10.2012

Employment & Labor Attorney Brandon Gaskins was recently quoted in an article for Human Resource Executive Online. The article, "The Trouble With Tobacco Testing," discusses the issue of testing for tobacco use in the workplace to determine insurance premiums or enrollment in incentive-based wellness programs. With South Carolina being the only state that prohibits companies from mandatory tobacco testing, Brandon states, "Premium differentials have become a trend that more employers are using to incentivize people to change their habits and promote a healthier lifestyle." To read the article in its entirety, please click here.