BLOGGER LIABILITY ARTICLE IN WESTLAW JOURNAL - COMPUTER & INTERNET

11.2012

Moore & Van Allen Commercial and Technology Transactions Senior Counsel Todd Taylor was published in the Westlaw Journal—Computer & Internet newsletter on November 30. His commentary piece, “Blogger’s liability for third-party comments and content: A growing legal threat for bloggers or plaintiffs’ lingering ignorance of the law?” addresses just that. Taylor discusses liability for comments, current legal developments and defenses for bloggers.

“A plaintiff potentially could assert a variety of claims against blog operators based on third-party-posted comments and content, including defamation, intrusion of privacy, unlawful harassment and copyright infringement,” Taylor states.
