ELECTION ANALYSIS

U.S. Senate

North Carolina voters cast 2.7 million ballots in yesterday's election, setting a record for turnout in a midterm year. At the top of the ticket, Republican state House Speaker Thom Tillis defeated incumbent Democrat U.S. Senator Kay Hagan in the nation's most expensive Senate contest, exceeding $100 million. Tillis's victory helped secure a Republican majority in the United States Senate for the first time since 2007. In what many political observers are calling a wave, Republicans added at least seven Senate seats, with three races still outstanding in Alaska, Louisiana and Virginia.

U.S. House

North Carolina's congressional delegation will remain Republican dominated, with the GOP adding the 7th District to hold 10 seats to Democrats' three. Nationally Republicans picked up seats to expand their control of the U.S. House to at least 246 seats, their largest majority since World War II.

North Carolina General Assembly

In the state Senate, Republicans gained one seat and expanded the Republican supermajority to a total of 34 seats, leaving Democrats with 16. In one of the closely watched contests, incumbent Senator Gene McLaurin (D-Richmond) lost to Ellerbe business owner Tom McInnis. McInnis received 50.42 percent of the final votes cast while McLaurin received 47.09 percent. The Libertarian candidate, P.H. Dawkins, received 2.49 percent.

Republican John Alexander leads Tom Bradshaw by less than one percent for District 15, an open seat in Wake County due to Senator Neal Hunt's retirement. Democratic challenger and former Raleigh Mayor Tom Bradshaw may call for a recount.

In the state House, Republicans still hold a significant 74 to 46 majority, but Democrats knocked off several influential Republican lawmakers to make for a net GOP loss of three seats. Republicans lost two seats around the Asheville area, one in Wake County and one in Lee County. Republicans picked up District 2, which represents Granville and Person Counties. This was an open seat since Representative Winkie Wilkins (D-Granville, Person) is retiring.

Democrat Cary Town Council member Gale Adcock defeated incumbent Representative Tom Murry (R-Wake). Murry served two terms and was the Chairman of the House Commerce and Job Development Committee.

In the western part of the state, Representative Tim Moffitt (R-Buncombe), was defeated by Democrat Brian Turner. Moffitt served two terms and served as the Chairman of the House Regulatory Reform Committee.

Republican incumbent Nathan Ramsey (R-Buncombe) lost to Democrat John Ager, and Democrat Brad Salmon defeated Representative Mike Stone (R-Lee) of Sanford.

Republican Gary Pendleton narrowly defeated Democrat Kim Hanchette in the race for District 49. Pendleton was appointed earlier this year to fill the seat for the late Representative Jim Fulghum.

Overall, Republicans continue to hold supermajorities in both the Senate and House, giving them the votes needed to override a veto by the governor.

Mecklenburg Board of County Commissioners

Democrats maintained control of the Mecklenburg Board of County Commissioners, with at-large victories by incumbent Pat Cotham, the largest vote-getter, followed by former Charlotte City Council member Ella Scarborough and incumbent Trevor Fuller. Democrat incumbents Dumont Clarke, Vilma Leake and George Dunlap faced no opposition. Republicans incumbents Matthew Ridenhour and Bill James held their seats, and Republican Jim Puckett won an open seat race.

Wake Board of County Commissioners

Democrats swept the four seats up for election on the Wake Board of County Commissioners and will now hold all seven seats on the board. The new board members include Sig Hutchinson, Matt Calabria, Jessica Holmes and John Burns. Each newly elected board member won by at least nine percentage points, and it is the first time Democrats have held the majority since 2010. Calabria said the board will focus on making investments in education and public transportation in the future. Democrats will have the ability to keep the board under their control until 2018 since only three seats will be up for election in 2016.

North Carolina Judicial Races

Four of the seven seats on the North Carolina Supreme Court were up for election this year. Mark Martin won his race for Supreme Court Chief Justice with more than 70 percent of the vote against Ola Lewis. In Associate Justice contests, Sam Ervin IV defeated Bob Hunter, and Robin Hudson defeated Eric Levinson. Both Ervin and Hudson won by more than 52 percent. Cheri Beasley leads Mike Roberson for the final Associate Justice seat by less than one half of one percentage point, so a recount could be called.

Mark Davis, Lucy Inman and John Tyson won competitive races for seats on the North Carolina Court of Appeals. Davis and Inman each received a majority of the votes in their respective races. Tyson received over 23 percent of the vote in a race that featured 19 candidates. In the final Court of Appeals race, Donna Stroud ran unopposed and retained her seat.
