Rayburn Quoted in Legal Futures Article

10.2015

Charlotte Corporate Associate Cowden Rayburn was quoted in a Legal Futures article on October 27. In the article titled, "Getting different generations working together is key to law firm success," Rayburn commented on how MVA's mentoring program, Ages and Stages, bridges the generational gap at the firm.

"We have a formal programme called 'Ages and Stages', which helps ours lawyers to share different skills - such as how to pitch to clients - amongst the different generational groups. This helps to make collaborative behaviours 'automatic,'" said Rayburn.
