Our attorneys bring comprehensive and innovative counsel and nuanced environmental knowledge in environmental regulatory compliance, enforcement and litigation to its diverse client base.

Our group provides sophisticated, cross-discipline representation to both companies and individuals—from manufacturers and real estate developers to financial institutions, environmental consultants, municipalities, and a variety of other businesses.

We advocate for clients in purchases and sales of businesses and properties, and in credit transactions, representing a spectrum of participants, traditional lenders, private equity firms, and borrowers. We provide trustworthy and proven representation of owners and developers who are cleaning up contaminated properties and returning them to use. We provide diligent and zealous defense of enforcement actions, toxic tort litigation and prosecution of environmental crimes. We've also represented companies and groups of companies in high-profile and precedent setting environmental litigation and before Congress and state legislative bodies.

Our comprehensive capabilities extend across the full spectrum of environmental issues and actions, from hazardous and radioactive waste to air pollution and groundwater, from noise pollution and siting and land use to coastal development and wetlands, from environmental crimes to environmental lobbying.

With diverse experience and pragmatic and practical know-how, our esteemed environmental attorneys publish and lecture widely on a range of environmental issues and play leadership roles in a range of industry and stakeholder groups.
