Martha Efird is a go-to attorney for state court rules, practice, and procedure due to her state court experience as a former assistant clerk of court/legal hearing officer.

Martha draws from her previous experience working for the North Carolina state court system to assist firm attorneys and its clients navigate state court practice and procedure. In this role, she stays abreast of changes to rules and various local practices and procedures for North Carolina's 100 counties. Most recently, this has included staying current on COVID-related court orders in order to alert attorneys to practice changes.

Martha works across all levels of state court from small claims to appellate cases, including North Carolina Business Court. Additionally, her work supports attorneys undertaking difficult pro bono matters for victims of domestic violence and human trafficking, and in other matters. Martha also helps train firm attorneys new to the state on state court procedures.

Before joining the firm, Martha worked as a Legal Hearing Officer in the Mecklenburg County Superior Court. In this role, she presided over guardianship cases, contested and non-contested foreclosure matters, and other matters within the Clerk of Court's jurisdiction. Martha also managed estates and special proceedings for the Clerk and, in doing so, gained extensive knowledge of estates and special proceedings. In addition, she learned many of the detailed procedures and rules applicable to the civil, criminal, and bookkeeping departments managed by the Clerk.

In her private practice, Martha represented clients in state criminal and civil cases and in federal employment matters. She has also served as the court-appointed guardian ad litem in guardianship, civil and criminal cases, where she dealt extensively with complex issues of mental capacity, mental health, and elder exploitation.
